Hi Dr. Prema,

It was great speaking with you today. Fantastic to see how interested you are in getting the best for your students.

Just to recap, under your current Basic Plan, the college will receive 20,000 licenses. This means that 20,000 students can sign up and get access to one free course per year, and access to unlimited guided projects. Here is the Plan Comparison I mentioned. If the Institution plan is something you would like to do, just let me know and I will get one of my colleagues to speak with you.

I am also linking some other useful information. Here is our Admin/Learner Guide. This will give students and faculty a good overview of the platform and how to use it.

Also, here is a link to our guide that shows how you can integrate Coursera into your curriculum and using it for credit purposes.

If you have any other questions, always feel free to reach out to me. If you have any colleagues that wish to speak with me, you can always forward them my calendar or email: See available times

CYCLE

INTRODUCTION

HERO CYCLE Ltd was established in the year 1956 and has its headquarters in Ludhiana, Punjab. It is a manufacturer of bicycles and bicycle related products. It initially started with manufacturing cycle components. At present, the company is one of the world's largest manufacturers of bicycle and producing 19000 cycles per day.

The company based in Ludhiana is fully equipped with in house research and development facilities.

The company produces all major components that include frame, fork, sirms, handle and mudguards and many such things within their premises under strict quality parameters that match the global standards. They were also the first company to introduce aluminium frame bicycles in India.

The company has over 250 supplier network, approx 2800 dealership and over 4300 employees and ISO 9001 and ISO 14001 certification from BVC of UK and recognised R and D department by the government of India.

HISTORY OF CYCLES

HERO CYCLE LTD company founded in 1956, 66 years ago by the founders of Beijmohan Lall Munjal, Om Prakash Munjal, Satyanand Munjal and Dayanand Munjal.

It all began when Beijmohan Lall Munjal and his three brothers who belonged to Kamalia, which is now in Pakistan, started a bicycle spare parts business in Amritsar.

Business was slow and was further affected by the partition, so the brothers decided to shift base to Ludhiana. In 1956, they acquired a license from the Punjab government to set up a cycle factory named HERO CYCLES, with a bank loan of about ₹50,000.

In 1975, this company became the largest manufacturer of bicycles in India with a production of 7500 cycles per day. By 1986 they were producing over 18500 cycles a day, earning them a place in the Guinness Book of World records as the largest cycle manufacturer in the world.

It would be accurate to say that even before 'Make in India' became a thing; this company started the trend. Another interesting point is how well the family interact with each other. Four brothers started the company and by the turn of the 21st century there were 21 family members in the business.

MW Company ups and downs

Desire for exercise in Covid times : A boom and a shortage for Hero cycles

The surge in cycle demand could not have come at a better time for India's largest manufacturer, yet it is struggling to meet sales orders.

The demand post-Covid has been led by the premium category that is priced at ₹12000 and above in the domestic market and for electric cycles in the European market. The electric segment has seen a 100 percent jump in sales in the first quarter over the same period last year, according to the company.

Keeping with this trend, two new smart electric cycles were launched soon after the lockdown was lifted in India. Hero also launched a new roadster for several markets, but the demand has been tepid.

PORTER'S FIVE FORCES MODEL

PORTER FIVE FORCE ANALYSIS.

Industry Rivalry

A framework to assess the strength of competition and the profitability of market. In the traditional economic model, competition among several firms drives profit to zero. But competition is not perfect and firms are not unenlightened price takers. Rather, firms strive for competitive advantage over their rivals.

Threat of Substitutes

In Porter's model, substitute products refers to products in other industries. To the economist, a threat of substitutability exists when a product's demand is affected by the price change of a substitute product. A product's price elasticity is affected by substitutable products - as more substitutably become available, the demand becomes more elastic since customers have more alternatives. A close substitute product constrains the ability of firms in an industry to raise prices.

SUPPLIER POWER.

Depending on certain factors, a supplier can have various levels of control and influence on your success. They can influence your product cost, profit margin, and inventory.

The factors used to gauge the supplier power can include:

- 1) Number of suppliers in the market
- 2) Number of customers they serve.
- 3) How unique is their product?

There are different types of suppliers, which vary based on your industry and product. Most fall into one of these four categories: Manufacturing, independent craftspeople, importers or distributors.

BUYER POWER.

Buyers can influence your business by demanding lower prices, better customer experience, higher quality products or more services and features. There are several factors that would make buyer bargaining power higher than that of a business. These are the most important to know:

- 1) Buyer demand is lower than supply
- 2) The cost of switching to your competitor is very low.
- 3) It's easy and possibly less expensive for the buyer to DIY.

THREAT OF NEW ENTRY

Analyzing threats to entry can help you decide if the launch of a new product or business is worth the investment. It may not even be practical or possible. For existing companies, the threat of new entry can help gauge the chance that newcomers will emerge and hurt your profitability.

It is assessed by looking at the barriers to entry. These are conditions that would make it difficult or impossible for new businesses to enter the market.

The most common are:

- 1) High startup costs
- 2) Extensive legal requirements
- 3) Strict and / or lengthy regulations

INNOVATION IN THE INDUSTRY

Science club activity- Biodiversity quiz

Date- 26.12.20,10am

Report

Biodiversity is defined as “the variability among living organisms from all sources including, inter alia, terrestrial, marine and other aquatic ecosystems and the ecological complexes of which they are part; this includes diversity within species, between species and of ecosystems.” With the objective of imparting an awareness about biodiversity and the need for conservation, the department had organised a quiz on biodiversity of India and the globe. Thirty students two in each team (15 teams) took active part in the quiz program. Mr. Pradeep Kaushik and Ms. Madhukala organised the quiz at room no 9 which started around 10am. There were four rounds of the quiz. All rounds had visual based questions. The students had to identify and comment on the organisms.

There were four rounds-

Round 1- Animalia- about endangered animals of India

Round 2- Mycota- about fungi and yeasts

Round 3- Plantae- about medicinally important Indian plants

Round 4-Microbiota- pathogenic and economically important viruses and bacteria

Each right answer used to fetch 10 points, while ‘passed’ answer gave 5 points.

Time limit for each question is 40 seconds, then automatically it was passed to the next team. After every round few teams with least score got eliminated. The right answer also had a brief description about the biodiversity significance which helped in enhancing the students' knowledge about biodiversity. The quiz ended by 12 pm and the following teams bagged the first three places-

First place- Chandana and Saddique (B Sc V sem)

Second place- Viswanath and Shashank (B Sc I sem)

Third place- Tamanna Poddar and Samriddhi Sharma (B Sc V sem)

Student feedback was collected at the end of the program and analysed.
