Student participation:

The attendance was generally high during the 1st slot and was the least during the 3rd slot both in offline and online modes. Only a few students interacted during the class in terms of answering the faculty or for asking doubts.

Trainer's feedback:

- The students are fairly knowledgeable and the majority was keen to learn.
- Students should participate more in the class.
- For QA, they need to practice more outside the class.
- They should have attended all the sessions
- They were generally presentable and well behaved during the class
- Students in Gallery 1 were not as attentive as the other two sections
- The gallery rooms should also have microphone facility

Student's feedback:

Some of the key suggestions made by the students are:

- The program was very useful
- Offline classes are preferred (66% were in favour of it).

Way forward:

We are available online to help these students solve any doubts, etc., that they may have related to this training and placement.

For subsequent batches, the training should be done much before the placements start. It could be spread out better and classes on Sundays could be avoided.

In conclusion:

This was a commendable initiative by the ABBS management, MBA department and the Placement department to train their students on aptitude and interview skills, despite it being a challenging year academically and otherwise. We are confident that more students would qualify the aptitude tests and get placed through on campus and off campus drives.
